

Empress

The Astonishing
Reign of

Nur Jahan

Ruby
Lal

Four centuries ago, a Muslim woman ruled an empire.

In 1611, thirty-four-year-old Nur Jahan became the twentieth and favorite wife of the Emperor Jahangir, who ruled the vast Mughal Empire. An astute politician as well as a talented dress designer and innovative architect whose work inspired her stepson's Taj Mahal, Nur was the only woman to acquire the stature of Empress in her male-dominated world. Here, she finally receives her due in a deeply researched and evocative biography that awakens us to a fascinating history.

“Ruby Lal has written a classic.”

—AMANDA FOREMAN,
author of The World Made by Women

“Amazing!”

—DEEPA MEHTA,
filmmaker and screenwriter

“Lush and sensuous, a jewel of a book.”

—ROSALIND MILES,
author of Who Cooked the Last Supper?

AVAILABLE WHEREVER BOOKS ARE SOLD: JULY 3, 2018

W. W. NORTON
WWNORTON.COM